CORPORATE STRATEGY 2020–2023
A flourishing tourism industry is important to every part of our province, and benefits all British Columbians.

Last year, our government developed Welcoming Visitors—Benefiting Locals—Working Together, A Strategic Framework for Tourism in BC. It sets out a clear vision for a prosperous industry that is sustainable economically, environmentally, socially and culturally.

Destination BC plays a key role in delivering the strategic framework, providing industry leadership in improving the visitor experience, supporting business and communities, and elevating British Columbia’s reputation as a world-class destination.

Destination BC’s new corporate strategy supports our government’s vision of a prosperous and sustainable tourism sector for all and we will continue to work closely with our partners on realizing this goal.

I am confident that Destination BC, in collaboration with tourism industry partners and all levels of government, will work to inspire travellers from across Canada and around the world to visit all corners of Super, Natural British Columbia® for years to come.
Tourism is one of the largest industries in the world. Here in BC, tourism is a powerhouse and rapidly growing. Despite some significant headwinds in the past year, tourism has a bright future.

We aspire to share the transformative power of BC experiences with the world. Now, in this new decade, we have an ambitious strategy to help our industry be more formidable competitors and achieve our goals while ensuring a sustainable tourism industry that continues to support the quality of life for all British Columbians.

This new strategy, with a focus on working with industry in place making and place branding, is exactly what we need in BC to draw visitors to more places in BC, at more times of the year. We want to show the best of BC to the world.

Working with BC’s tourism industry and our strategic partners, we will have the most distinctive and compelling brand proposition in the marketplace, one that can lure the world.

With this new strategy, we can stretch ourselves beyond the 4% growth forecasts in the Provincial Strategic Framework for Tourism to reach the target of 6% annual revenue growth. We can increase visitation to more areas in BC, across more seasons. We can be more formidable competitors in the new decade, and beyond! And we can grow sustainable social, cultural, environmental and economic benefits for all British Columbians.
Over the three-year horizon of our previous corporate strategy, the BC tourism industry achieved significant success. BC is outpacing Canada in international visitation growth. The visitor economy is outpacing the overall economy in GDP growth. And 161,500 people now work in our industry. We’ve made progress in improving accessibility of travel, increasing demand for Indigenous tourism, leveraging new technologies that enable us to compete more effectively, managing growth sustainably, and improving collaboration and partnerships, among other successes. Working as a strong industry, we have created a solid foundation of great work that we will continue to build upon.

REVENUE GROWTH

We have an opportunity to make tourism a greater contributor to the well-being of every part of our province. To do that, we need to improve our competitiveness and capture more share of the global value of tourism. We need two revenue growth strategies:

1. Mature Destinations: Currently, 63% of our tourism industry room revenues are coming from six centres in BC: Metro Vancouver, Victoria, Whistler, Kelowna, Kamloops, and Tofino/Ucluelet. We must continue to grow travel to these mature destinations. Yet, given existing capacity constraints, we must focus on growth during off-peak times and on attracting more high-value international visitors.

2. High-Potential Destinations: To build a stronger tourism industry beyond mature destinations over the long term, we must work in new ways to lure travellers to visit more areas of the province in all seasons.

Together, we must work both of these dispersion angles—seasonal and geographic—to meet our industry goal of 6%. We must fully integrate our strategies for destination development and marketing.
Where We Will Focus

We can’t be all things to all people. We know the best strategy focuses in on those few elements that can make a significant difference.

PATH TO PURCHASE

Destination BC and BC’s tourism industry have a collective role in capturing the imagination and interest of high-potential travellers. In the path to purchase, we see our role primarily in the pre-trip and in-trip stages, to build place brands, create emotional interest, and generate referrals to BC’s tourism businesses.

We will focus on ensuring that once travellers are in BC, they have remarkable experiences wherever they go; that means we will focus on enhancing our destinations to reflect the uniqueness of their place brands and diversity of what they have to offer our target markets.

Path to Purchase: Pre-trip & In-trip
VISITOR DISPERSION

Visitor dispersion includes both seasonal dispersion and geographic dispersion. For destinations that are already at capacity during high season—our mature destinations—we will focus on shoulder seasons.

We will work with mature community DMOs to increase the effectiveness of marketing and development resources towards shoulder season growth.

To bring greater tourism benefits to high-potential destinations beyond the mature destinations, we will focus on geographic dispersion. This improves the economic diversification and resilience of BC communities. We will invest in new, more effective ways of creating geographic dispersion.

Seasonal Dispersion: Mature Destinations

Geographic Dispersion: High-Potential Destinations
GLOBAL MARKETS

To maximize the effectiveness of our marketing dollars, we’ve made clear choices about the markets with the highest potential for revenue and visitation to British Columbia. Our focus will shift to those markets that can maximize seasonal and geographic dispersion.

KEY PARTNERS

The foundation of our strategy requires that we continue to work hand-in-hand with our strategic partners—it’s an important part of our collective success. We know we are capable of changing our world when we work together.

- Tourism Businesses, DMOs, sectors
- Channels (digital platforms, travel media, travel trade)
- Destination Canada, cross-Canada provincial partners
- Governments (municipal, provincial, federal, Indigenous)
How We Will Win

Over the last few years, we have completed extensive community engagement and consultation with the tourism industry within BC. This ongoing industry insight helps guide our approach to strategy.

We identified three strategic imperatives that we believe will help us win together in the competitive marketplace:

INVEST IN ICONICS   Integrating place making and place branding: building and marketing BC flagships to drive more dispersion. This is a new way of looking at our province—creating iconic, inspirational routes and areas that will strengthen the travel appeal of all parts of our province, in more seasons. It balances the capacity needs and market-readiness of our many destinations—focusing on shoulder-season growth in our cities and mature destinations, while fostering all-season growth in high-potential communities and rural destinations where capacity exists.

DESTINATION STEWARDSHIP   Growing tourism sustainably in BC by balancing the social, cultural, environmental, and economic dimensions of our industry to benefit all British Columbians. These values underpin everything we do as an organization and as an industry.

INTEGRATED INDUSTRY   Building scale by working more closely together, creating efficiency through complementary roles, and sharing assets across the entire BC tourism ecosystem. We are creating a structural competitive advantage in how we work together and how we manage our destination.
Invest in Iconics

We know we must give travellers compelling reasons to travel to more places in British Columbia in more seasons. Through a strategy of both place making and place branding we are building and marketing flagship routes and areas.

We are at the beginning of a 10-year journey. Together, we will build the Iconics and make them successful. We aim to inspire potential visitors to choose our destinations, and to rally the BC tourism ecosystem to leverage these new shared brands. Through this strategic imperative, we are focused on two key elements:

Place Making

Developing remarkable, compelling experiences through shared destination development and experience development.

- Integrating destination development and marketing strategies to increase visitation to BC’s Iconics throughout the province
- Fostering development of remarkable experiences: appealing products, destinations, services, and events

Place Branding

Elevating the appeal of our Iconic places through shared branding and innovative, data-driven marketing.

- Leveraging a shared brand and marketing
- Amplifying marketing investments through Iconics
- Investing in co-operative marketing
- Achieving shared KPI and marketing performance alignment

WHAT IS AN ICONIC?

It’s about answering the question: What do we want to be famous for?

It’s a powerful new way to package and market our province through flagship place brands and place making.

People travel to BC to experience our spectacular settings: monumental mountains, rugged coastlines, abundant wildlife, lush rainforests, and cities surrounded by nature. And they come away with a new sense of well-being, transformed by our province, Super, Natural British Columbia®.

Our new strategy creates focal points that can be seen and heard, that can rise above the noise and the vast array of travel choices in the world.

The Iconics approach packages our province in new ways to allow us to strengthen our voice, collectively. To create storylines about our places that ignite the imagination and fuel a desire to experience them. Potential travellers will see our destinations with new eyes. It gives them a simpler path to purchase, to move them from the dreaming stage to the booking stage.
CREATION OF OUR ICONICS

We have identified a small number of routes and places that, in total, cover the entire province. With consistent, collective investment in place making and place branding over the next few years, each has the potential to become iconic and compete on a global stage. These are Iconic BC place brand “working concepts”.

This work started several years ago, when we embarked on a major place making planning initiative. The destination development program engaged 1,600 people across the province and resulted in destination development strategies for every corner of our province.

We now have a much clearer sense of how communities see themselves and what the opportunities are. Through this work, the creation of Iconics becomes Destination BC’s provincial destination development plan.

In addition, we researched destinations around the world and the strategies they used to solve their dispersion challenges. We reviewed 10 years’ of research on our key markets, worked with travel trade partners, reviewed current and old travel routes, and conducted preliminary consumer research with people around the world.

Travellers must be our primary filter as we develop BC’s Iconics. If they don’t appeal to the consumer, no amount of marketing and development will entice them to travel.
DESTINATION STEWARDSHIP

Destination Stewardship

To build a strong future for all British Columbians, and for generations to come, we want to be excellent stewards of our province—ensuring we thoughtfully develop the economic, social, cultural, and environmental benefits of tourism across British Columbia.

We are doing more to balance all aspects of sustainability, and are working on specific areas that benefit from a provincial leadership role. Through this strategic imperative, we are focused on three key elements:

UNDRIP and Truth and Reconciliation Calls to Action

- Working in partnership with industry, governments, and Indigenous Tourism BC to better support Indigenous communities that want to benefit from tourism
- Working with industry to understand, support, and implement the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and Reconciliation

Sustainability

- Working with the provincial government and all our industry partners to support the implementation of Clean BC, the provincial strategy to reduce carbon pollution, increase use of clean energy, and reduce waste
- Assessing BC tourism against the United Nations 17 Sustainable Development Goals
- Supporting the development of more accessible and inclusive tourism experiences and employment
- Educating industry, residents, and visitors on sustainable tourism practices
- Managing visitor volume provincially through seasonal and geographic dispersion
If well managed, the tourism industry provides a great opportunity for strong growth—it can be an even bigger contributor to our economic, social, cultural, and environmental well-being in the future.
PARTNERS IN INDIGENOUS TOURISM DEVELOPMENT

Our strategy continues to support the growth and development of Indigenous tourism. We have made a new three-year $4 million partnership funding commitment to Indigenous Tourism BC to grow the benefits of tourism for Indigenous communities. This includes funding for six regional Indigenous specialists. Together, we will increase the number of Indigenous tourism businesses, increase market readiness, and increase the number of visitors who had an Indigenous experience, among other goals.

MAKING TRAVEL MORE INCLUSIVE

Destination BC’s Three-Year Accessibility Action Plan ensures residents and visitors of all abilities can experience the transformative power of BC. It makes travel more inclusive in terms of tourism experiences and employment.

Year one focuses primarily on physical and sensory challenges—mobility, vision, and hearing. Years two and three will support cognitive and other inclusion challenges. Our plan also addresses inclusive tourism employment. People with physical, sensory, or cognitive challenges represent an underemployed talent pool. Our industry requires loyal, skilled workers and we have a significant opportunity to tap into this good source of people power in our communities.
RESIDENT SUPPORT FOR TOURISM

We want to ensure our industry continues to have the support of British Columbians. And, right now, we certainly do.

- 94% of BC residents believe that the tourism industry plays an important role in the economic well-being of British Columbia
- Nearly 90% of BC Chamber of Commerce members surveyed say tourism, as a sector, will become even more important over the next decade
- 82% of BC residents agree that tourism supports a greater diversity of amenities in their community than would be feasible without visitors.

Our social license should never be taken for granted. Tourism can enhance the quality of life for all British Columbians through social and cultural amenities such as galleries and restaurants, through environmental stewardship such as wildlife preservation and wilderness trails maintenance, and through economic growth benefitting both cities and rural areas.
Integrated Industry

We can create a competitive advantage through the unique way that we work together. By fully leveraging the ecosystem of partners across our industry, working cohesively to share our intelligence, integrating our go-to-market strategies, and combining our individual resources and expertise, we are more able to meet the demands of our competitive world.
Through this strategic imperative, we are focused on these key elements:

1. Tourism Data Hub
   - Continuing to develop new ways for us all to benefit from sharing technology, data, content, expertise, and marketing programs

2. Destination Development and Marketing Integration
   - Integrating the work of our marketing and destination development teams and partners
   - Supporting the implementation of the shared destination development strategies that were created for every corner of BC through broad consultation with industry, government, and tourism businesses
   - Working with Regional DMOs who will lead destination development implementation work on the ground
   - Building strategic partner alliances

3. Collective People Power
   - Working with industry leaders and partners
   - Identifying and recruiting top talent with industry-leading skills and capabilities
   - Continuing to invest in and develop our employees
   - Engaging in meaningful, trusted partnerships and training

4. Complementary Roles
   - Aligning activities across partners to maximize the effectiveness of combined resources
   - Seeking complementary, highly-valued, highly-differentiated roles among players in the industry
Capabilities & Management Systems

Capabilities are the activities, skills and expertise that we must have as an organization to deliver on our “where-we-will-focus” and “how-to-win” choices. Given the strategic choices described in the previous two sections, we will continue to develop our capabilities in these areas:

- Actionable Insights
- Digital Marketing Excellence
- Destination Leadership
- Industry Enablement
- Organizational Agility
Management systems are the processes, structures, business rules, and technologies that will build and strengthen the strategic capabilities needed to deliver on our strategic choices and measure and reinforce our performance.

- People & Culture
- Digital Workplace
- Shareable, Scalable Marketing Platforms (Data Hub)
- Partner Engagement
